

Organs

An organ is any distinct part of a human, animal or plant that has a characteristic shape and structure and performs a particular function in the organism's life. The most important organ of the human or animal is the heart. Several organs function together as an organ system. They need each other in order to work properly.

Give a short explanation of each organ's function in the human body.

Heart _____

Lungs _____

Kidneys _____

Bowels _____

Liver _____

Brain _____
